“ When I think of my brother Stan I remember a man who loved his family first. His wife, his boys and his grandkids meant the world to him. He may have angered easily but he always forgave quickly. As his baby sister he took care of me, as a child, a teenager and as an adult. He worked hard all of his life, from his early teenage years on. I am truly blessed to have had him in my life in so many ways. I will miss him. I'm glad that his suffering is over and I know in my heart that he is walking hand in hand with Honora at peace in a better place.

“ So many great memories from childhood to senior hood (if that's even a word) we had such great times together on all our cruises and visits to Vegas. Our vacations together always made our friendship stronger. We will never hear your words of wisdom again but will always cherish all the fun times we had.
Rest In Peace dear friend and give Honora a big kiss from all of us.

“ Stan was like a real brother to me. Even though he was technically my broth-in-law, I could not have loved him more. A man with a bigger heart could never be found. I will always be thankful and joyful for the new brother I inherited when I married Joel.

One memory that I have among the many, that brings a smile to my face is the time when I had just recently begun dating his brother. Stan and I were just being silly chasing around the apartment. One of us had just squirted whipped cream on the other. I think we had the whipped cream cans our hands as we chased each other around the apartment. One thing led to another as we ran around the beautiful dining table covered with a glass top leaning so elegantly next to the floor to ceiling mirrored wall. Uh oh! Big trouble. We crashed into the table which then crashed into the mirrored wall. Chip, chip crash. The glass table top was never the same, although it was not such a big chip, luckily I don't think anything happened to the mirrored wall. Well, Stan's mom wanted to know what happened when she arrived home and saw it. Stan played dumb. I didn't say a word. I don't think mom ever found out what happened. Neither of us ever confessed! Such loyalty in crime!

Some really wild times happened between Joel and Stan and dad's Starfire when Joel and I were dating and I think Stan was dating Honora. Their dad had gotten a brand new Starfire and the boys would fight over who would get to use it for their date. Stan took one of the parts out of the car so Joel couldn't drive it. So Joel took a part out of the car so Stan couldn't drive it! PS...nobody got it! And that happened more than once!

I can only imagine what it was like living with those two crazy guys under one roof! But Stan was always kind and sweet and wonderful to me. He treated me like a sister, always. Ended every text and every phone call with, "love you guys". So I will end this with...."love you too Stan", rest easy and peacefully brother. And if there is anyway we can figure it out, we'll get that STARFIRE UP TO YOU...SOMEHOW

All our Love for always and an eternity, your brother and sister, Debbie and Joel.
